- The Israeli Knesset will discuss “the Regulation Draft Law” that is meant to legalize the illegal settlement construction on private Palestinian land. Following the Supreme Court decisions calling on the state to enforce the law and evacuate a number of buildings built in the territories on private Palestinian lands (such as in Migron and the Ulpana Hill), right-wing lawmakers have proposed a draft law to legalize the construction, even when it is done on private Palestinian land. The draft law by MK Yaacov Katz says that if a builder who built on private lands in the Occupied Territories innocently believed he owned the land – then he will be considered the owner of the land. Or if the government encouraged the construction (by funding or advertising) – the land will be considered state land. And this is how it is phrased: (a). Where buildings are built on land in the area [the Occupied Territories], with government permission or with its help by installing infrastructures, granting incentives or publishing incentivizing advertisements for the construction or erection of the buildings, the land will be considered state land. (b). Where the builder of the buildings on land in the area believed innocently at the time of the construction of the buildings that he was the land owner, he will be considered the landowner. (c). Where a person proved his ownership of land on which buildings were built as stated in subsections (a) or (b), he may sue for compensation for the value of the land before the buildings were built. According to the draft law, any person who wants to can steal any land he wants to, as long as he does so "innocently." And if the government wants to, it can simply "encourage construction" on private land and the land will be considered state land. IMEMC (June 4, 2012).

- The Israeli Knesset is due to vote on a bill geared at sanctioning illegal West Bank outposts. Netanyahu and his advisers will present Weinstein's legal opinion before the government. According to the bill, Jewish residential neighborhoods of more than 20 families that are built on land whose legal owners had not challenged the construction within four years would not be evacuated. Netanyahu announced that he would oppose the bill and any member of his government that votes in its favor would be fired. Ynetnews (June 6, 2012).
- In a move meant to placate right-wing ministers, Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said that he will head a new ministerial committee that would deal with settlement affairs. The announcement was made hours before the Knesset convened to vote on a bill aiming to legalize homes built on contested land in the West Bank. The formation of the committee would essentially rescind authority over settlement matters granted almost exclusively to Defense Minister Ehud Barak. The government is expected to discuss the structure and responsibilities of the committee early next week. Likud lawmakers have been calling for the replacement of the defense minister, accusing Barak and Kadima of pulling their party to the Left. Ynetnews (June 6, 2012).
- In a cyber-age twist on Israel's vaunted history of airport security, the country has begun to force incoming travelers deemed suspicious to open personal email accounts for inspection, visitors say. The practice appears to be aimed at rooting out visitors who have histories of pro-Palestinian activism, and in recent weeks, has led to the expulsion of at least three American women. The security procedures appear to be getting stricter: Recent searches of journalists at official events have been invasive enough to create a series of mini-uproars and walkouts – a situation that has dovetailed with increasing concerns that the government is trying to stifle dissent. Ynetnews (June 6 2012)

- Housing Minister Ariel Atias announced that his ministry will market land for the purpose of building 551 new housing units in the West Bank. According to Atias' announcement, 117 units will be marketed in Ariel, 92 housing units in Ma'ale Adumim, 144 housing units in Adam, 114 units in Efrat, and 84 units in Kiryat Arba'. The 551 housing units will be marketed in addition to the 300 units that have already been announced for Beit El. The agreement on the marketing of the land was reached in a conversation between Atias and Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu. Atias welcomed the marketing and said, "Increasing the supply of land helps young couples. Construction in Judea and Samaria strengthens the settlement enterprise. 30 apartments will be evacuated, but 850 new units will be built instead. Under the circumstances it is a proper solution." The announcement came several hours after the Knesset rejected a bill aimed at circumventing a court order to destroy five residential units in the Ulpana neighborhood in Beit El and expel their 30 families. The vote was 22 for the bill and 69 against. Absent from the vote were all of the ministers and deputy ministers who vowed to test Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu's ultimatum to vote against the bill or be fired. Ynetnews (June 7, 2012).
- The Israeli Occupation Authorities threatened to close "Radio As Shamal" ("The North" Radio Station) which broadcast at 88.6 frequency under the pretext that the Radio station affects the broadcast of Ben Gorion Airport. The IOA also threatened to confiscate the broadcasting devices. Paltimes (June 15, 2012).
- The Israeli government approved the establishment of a ministerial committee headed by Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu to deal with issues relating to settlement construction. The establishment of the committee was one of the steps announced by Netanyahu to garner the support of right-wing ministers to vote against a bill aimed at regulating West Bank outposts. Netanyahu presented the option as a response to the ministers who sought to transfer the decision-making process over settlement building from Barak to a ministerial committee. The responsibilities of the committee were designated vaguely, including the formation of an official governmental policy regarding unregulated building in the West Bank.
